

Pope John Paul II greeting Sri Chinmoy at the Vatican (13 October 1987)

PEACE WALK

Peace Walks at the United Nations are organised under the co-sponsorship of the Peace Meditation group and a number of Permanent Representatives to the United Nations. They are held annually at the United Nations on U.N. Charter Day (June 26) and U.N. Day (October 24) as well as in over 50 cities around the world to mark the International Day of Peace on the opening day of the U.N. General Assembly. During these events, participants walk in prayerful silence for universal peace and in respect for the founding principles of the United Nations.

"I encourage participation in the Peace Walk. In order to end world suffering and division, we all must develop the inner qualities of brotherhood and selflessness."

Archbishop Desmond M. Tutu,
1985 Nobel Peace Laureate

"Every person has the obligation to do what he can to help the world move towards the goal of international cooperation, peace and brotherhood. I support the Peace Walk as a step toward this end."

Dr. Linus Pauling, Nobel Laureate in Peace
(1962) and Chemistry (1954)

SRI CHINMOY

A Vision for World Peace

TWICE A WEEK FOR
THE LAST 25 YEARS
SRI CHINMOY HAS BEEN CONDUCTING
PEACE MEDITATIONS

NATIONS.

*"The outer message of the United Nations is peace.
The inner message of the United Nations is love.
The inmost message of the United Nations is oneness."*

- Sri Chinmoy

THE UNITED NATIONS: HUMANITY'S HOPE FOR WORLD PEACE

"Peace and the United Nations are inseparable. Peace means the presence of harmony, love, satisfaction and oneness. We have to feel the whole world as our very own. If each individual in each nation can consciously feel that he or she does not belong to a little family called 'I and mine', but to a larger family called 'we and ours', then the message of love, brotherhood, peace and sharing can easily be embraced by the entire world. It is precisely this message, this hope for world peace and oneness, that the United Nations offers humanity."

- Sri Chinmoy

SRI CHINMOY: THE PEACE MEDITATION AT THE UNITED NATIONS

From its earliest days, the United Nations has recognized the value of meditation as a force for world peace. Each session of the General Assembly is opened and closed with a minute of silence. Trygve Lie, the first Secretary-General, had a meditation room built in the Secretariat building and his successor, Dag Hammarskjöld, designed the room as we know it today. Since the inception of the United Nations, representatives of member countries have been enjoying moments of contemplation in the Meditation Room.

The practice of meditation was further expanded when in 1970, Sri Chinmoy, an internationally respected philosopher, lecturer, author and spiritual teacher with an interdenominational approach to meditation, was invited to serve as leader of a meditation group at U.N. headquarters.

U Thant with Sri Chinmoy at the United Nations (29 February 1972)

"I personally feel that you have been doing a most significant task for the United Nations. Please feel my sincere respect and sincere concern for what you are doing for mankind."

U Thant, Secretary-General of the United Nations (1961-1972)

Kurt Waldheim with Sri Chinmoy at the United Nations (24 October 1978)

"We want peace, peace. You are praying for peace. I know what you are doing for us. I know it, I can feel it."

Kurt Waldheim, Secretary-General of the United Nations (1972-1981)

Under his guidance, the meditation group, officially referred to as Sri Chinmoy: The Peace Meditation at the United Nations, has dedicated itself to the ideals of universal harmony and world peace.

For 25 years, Sri Chinmoy has been holding twice-weekly meditations, which provide an opportunity for quiet, spiritual renewal in an atmosphere reflective of the highest purposes of the world organisation. In addition, through an ongoing series of programs and symposia, the Peace Meditation group provides a forum for ambassadors, Secretariat officials and staff, religious leaders and other global-minded individuals to share and reinforce their spiritual vision for the United Nations.

"There shall come a time when this world of ours will be flooded with peace. Who is going to bring about this radical change? It will be you, you and your brothers and sisters. You and your oneness-heart will spread peace throughout the length and breadth of the world."

-Sri Chinmoy

Javier Perez de Cuellar and Sri Chinmoy at the United Nations
(13 January 1983)

"You concentrate on the truths and ideals which unite all mankind: the longing for peace, the need for compassion, the search for tolerance and understanding among men and women of all nations."

Javier Perez de Cuellar, Secretary-General of the United Nations (1982-1991)

"I would like to express my gratitude to Sri Chinmoy for reminding us in so many ways, on so many occasions, of the need to pray for peace, to meditate on peace, to work for peace, to make peace a reality in our daily life. His very presence brings to us in the United Nations new possibilities, new ideas and new hopes."

Jorge E. Illueca, President of the 38th Session of the U.N. General Assembly

"Since meeting with you and becoming familiar with your important creative initiatives in global peace, I have become deeply impressed with your work."

Stoyan Ganev, President of the 47th Session of the U.N. General Assembly

SEVEN MINUTES FOR WORLD PEACE

Inaugurated in 1984 by Sri Chinmoy, Seven Minutes for World Peace is a simultaneous global observance of peaceful silence honour of United Nations Day on October 24th. Its goal is to increase humanity's awareness of the inner dimensions of peace and the relationship between inner and outer peace. Individuals and groups from more than 40 countries participate in this annual event.

At the United Nations Church Center in New York, Sri Chinmoy leads a silent opening prayer at a program held in honour of America's National Day of Prayer.
